UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

EDWARD REYNIR SULLIVAN,
Plaintiff,
v.
MATTHEW MARTELL, Warden,
Defendant.

NO. CV 08-210-JFW(E)
ORDER TRANSFERRING ACTION TO
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

On January 7, 2008, Petitioner filed a "Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus by a Person in State Custody." On February 8, 2008, Respondent filed a "Motion to Transfer, etc." On February 21, 2008, Petitioner filed a "Notice of Objection to Request for Transfer By Respondent." For the reasons discussed herein, Respondent's motion is granted.

Petitioner currently is in custody within the Central District of California, but challenges a conviction in the Santa Diego County Superior Court, a court located within the Southern District of California. The policy of the federal courts in California is to

1 transfer to the district of conviction all section 2254 petitions that 2 challenge convictions. Thus, transfer to the Southern District of
3 California is appropriate. See Bell v. Watkins, 692 F.2d 999, 1013
4 (5th Cir. 1982), cert. denied, 464 U.S. 843 (1983) (district court
5 properly transferred habeas petition to district of conviction
6 because, inter alia, district of conviction "was the more convenient
7 forum because of the accessibility of evidence"); see also 28 U.S.C.
8 § 2241(d) (section 2254 petitions may be filed in the district of 9 conviction or in the district of confinement, but the district court
10 "in the exercise of its discretion and in furtherance of justice may 11 transfer the application to the other district court for hearing and 12 determination"); 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a) (any civil action may be 13 transferred to any other district where the action might have been 14 brought "[f]or the convenience of parties and witnesses, in the 15 interest of justice"); cf. L.R. 83-17.5 (codifying for death penalty
16 cases the policy of the Central District of California "that a 17 petition should be heard in the district in which petitioner was 18 convicted, rather than in the district of petitioner's present
19 confinement").

21 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that this action is hereby transferred 22 to the United States District Court for the Southern District of 23 California, at San Diego, California, and that the Clerk of this Court 24 shall effect such transfer.

25 ///

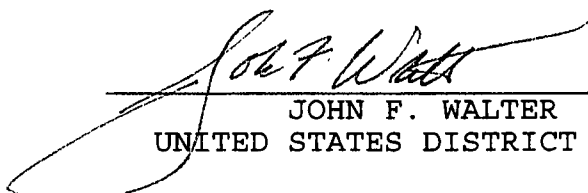

26 ///

27 ///

1 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk shall serve a copy of this
2 Order upon Petitioner and counsel for Respondent.

7. For this petition, state every ground on which you claim that you are being held in violation of the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States. Attach additional pages if you have more than five grounds. Summarize briefly the facts supporting each ground. For example, if you are claiming ineffective assistance of counsel, you must state facts specifically setting forth what your attorney did or failed to do.

CAUTION: Exhaustion Requirement: In order to proceed in federal court, you must ordinarily first exhaust your state court remedies with respect to each ground on which you are requesting relief from the federal court. This means that, prior to seeking relief from the federal court, you first must present all of your grounds to the California Supreme Court.

a. Ground one: Sentence exceed statutory maximum that could be lawful imposed regardless to plea.

(1) Supporting FACTS: Petitioner contends that except for a prison prior conviction, ANY fact that INCREASES the penalty for a crime beyond the prescribed statutory maximum must be submitted to a jury and proved beyond a reasonable doubt in order to satisfy petitioner's Constitutional right under Sixth & Fourteenth Amendments. Petitioner contends that this is not removed simply because he entered into a plea agreement.

- (2) Did you raise this claim on direct appeal to the California Court of Appeal? ☐ Yes ☒ No
 (3) Did you raise this claim in a Petition for Review to the California Supreme Court? ☒ Yes ☐ No
 (4) Did you raise this claim in a habeas petition to the California Supreme Court? ☒ Yes ☐ No

b. Ground two: Sentencing Judge exceeded his authority in imposing an enhancement not tied to a prison prior or not a prison prior itself

(1) Supporting FACTS: Petitioner contends that the sentencing judge had no lawful jurisdiction to impose an additional term of imprisonment (PC §12022.1) and the U.S. Supreme Court has already stated in rulings that "any fact that increases the penalty for a crime beyond the prescribed statutory maximum must be submitted to a jury and proved beyond a reasonable doubt." Apprendi v. New Jersey 530 U.S. 466.

- (2) Did you raise this claim on direct appeal to the California Court of Appeal? ☐ Yes ☒ No
 (3) Did you raise this claim in a Petition for Review to the California Supreme Court? ☒ Yes ☐ No

(4) Did you raise this claim in a habeas petition to the California Supreme Court? ☒ Yes ☐ No

c. Ground three: Plea bargain can not be upheld if all relevant facts are not (first) provided to defendant/petition PRIOR to his entering into a plea agreement

(1) Supporting FACTS: Petitioner states that had he known the sentence (itself) could not be lawfully imposed - he would not have entered into a plea agreement for the time. Petitioner concludes that he would not have relied on defense counsel's advice. Petitioner states that in order to make an intelligent and informed decision he must be provided with all facts and truths with regards to the sentence itself.

(2) Did you raise this claim on direct appeal to the California Court of Appeal? ☐ Yes ☒ No

(3) Did you raise this claim in a Petition for Review to the California Supreme Court? ☒ Yes ☐ No

(4) Did you raise this claim in a habeas petition to the California Supreme Court? ☒ Yes ☐ No

_____)

Comes now is EDWARD REYNIR SULLIVAN, Petitioner, in the above entitled matter who makes this Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus (by a State prisoner) to challenge California's determining sentencing law (hereinafter referred to as "DSL") which does not authorized the judge, but only a jury, to find facts exposing Petitioner to an elevated upper base term sentence and/or imposing enhancements in direct violation with California Penal Code § 1170(a)(3); the United States Supreme Court's ruling in Apprendi v. New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466, 490; 120 S.Ct. 2348; 147 L.Ed.2d 435; and thus in violation of the Petitioner's Sixth and Fourteenth Amendment United States Constitutional rights.

Petitioner contends that at all times mentioned herein, he is being restrained of his freedom and liberty and held illegally by the Respondents (and each of them); as the Petitioner contends that the imposed sentence (itself) is unlawful and illegal; as the sentencing court has no authority (itself) to impose said enhancements.

Petitioner filed this petition with the Superior Court of the State of California, County of San Diego, (Case Number HC 15786 / SDC 117298 - 3rd Petition) for which the Honorable Judge David J. Daniels denied said petition without the benefit of a hearing. Petitioner also states that the Court of Appeals also denied his petition without benefit of hearing.

On October 17, 2007, the California Supreme Court denied petitioner's Writ of Habeas Corpus; thus concluding his State remedies. See attached Exhibit 'A'. Petitioner states that the reasoning provided for denying the petition is without serious merit and review by the United States District Court is obvious to correct the ruling of the lower court.

-II-

At all times mentioned herein, Petitioner is (and has been) under the jurisdiction of the Respondents and pursuant to the findings of the Superior Court, State of California, County of San Diego following the findings of GUILT in a judge trial and subsequent sentencing which resulted in a total prison term of fifteen (15) years in California State Prison.

Petitioner states that there has not been a recent CHANGES in any California sentencing laws; nor has the U.S. Supreme Court changes it's position on this subject. Petitioner states that the State of California (and in particular the Superior Courts therein) have FAILED TO COME INTO COMPLIANCE

-PARTIES-

-III-

EDWARD REYNIR SULLIVAN is the Petitioner in the above-entitled matter. Petitioner states that he is incarcerated under the jurisdiction of the Director of the California Department of Corrections & Rehabilitation (CDCR) at the California Rehabilitation Center (CRC) located in the City of Norco, County of Riverside, California. Petitioner is proceeding in Pro Per.

-IV-

Petitioner states that the Secretary of the CDCR is a politically appointed position under the direct control of the Governor of the State of California and confirmed by the California State Legislature. Petitioner states that the current Secretary of CDCR is JIM TILTON and he (alone) is responsible for the overall operations of CDCR.

Petitioner states that Respondent MATTHEW MARTELL is the "Warden" of CRC and reports to the Director of CDCR. Petitioner states that Respondent MARTELL is legally responsible for his current and continued incarceration to The People of the State of California (the Real Party at Interest) pursuant to a direct court order.

Petitioner contends that his present and continued incarceration is both unlawful and illegal based (solely) on the ruling of the United States Supreme Court in CUNNINGHAM v. CALIFORNIA, 2007 WL 135687 (U.S. Cal.) (Only the Westlaw citation is currently available); decided on January 22, 2007.

The Respondents (and each of them) are duly represented (as a matter of law) by the California State Attorney General's Office.

-STATEMENT OF FACTS-

-v-

Petitioner was originally arrested in 1995 for "strong arm robbery". Petitioner states that he was subsequently released on bail for those charges and so remained until approximately May 12, 1996.

Petitioner states that during his subsequent re-arrest and incarceration, additional charges were filed against him for a "burglary". Petitioner states that a judge trial was held and he was found guilty/convicted of: California Penal Code §459 (and specifically "Burglary 1st Degree"); California Penal Code §496(a) (and specifically "Receiving Stolen Property"); California Penal Code §12022.1 (and specifically "Enhancement for Offense Committed while on Bail") and an enhancement pursuant to California Penal Code §667(a), and as indicated in People of the State of California V. EDWARD REYNIR SULLIVAN, San Diego Superior Court Case # (SCD 117298).

Petitioner states that the G. Peterson, Deputy Public Defender, County of San Diego, CA, represented him. Petitioner states that in order to make an intelligent and informed decision, he must (first) be provided with all the known and available information with regard to the law.

Petitioner DENIES that this was done or that he was informed of the law. As a matter of fact, the Petitioner "trusted and believed" that the sentence was lawful and otherwise legal and the sentencing court in a position to impose an enhancement him under the DSL. Petitioner DENIES that this was done or that he was informed as to the statutory maximum sentence that could be imposed under CPC § 12022 and/or § 667(a).

Petitioner states that he is merely a layman to the law and does not profess to know all the laws associated with court matters. Petitioner contends that relevant facts and information were withheld from him; and he continues to be denied his Sixth Amendment Constitutional right.

Petitioner states that the Honorable Judge Laura P. Hammes sentenced him to a term of four (4) years (middle base term), doubled to eight (8) years; Enhanced him pursuant to CPC §12022.1 two (2) additional years; and Enhanced (for prior prison terms) him pursuant to CPC § 667(a) five (5) additional years for a total prison term of fifteen (15) years; as each count was ordered served consecutively.

Petitioner contends that the ~~maximum~~ the judge could impose under law was four (4) years; (and questions the sentencing court's authority to double the middle term for the "Burglary", doubled to eight years; as the offense was said to be committed while Petitioner was released on bail).

Petitioner states that he was sentenced on or about October 10, 1996 and subsequently delivered to the CDCR Reception Center for processing. Petitioner states that he remains in custody pursuant to that case and has an Earliest Possible Release Date (EPRD) of June 11, 2008; at which time he will be released from custody to parole pursuant to California Penal Code (CPC) § 3000. Petitioner states that he will be release on parole to San Diego County.

Petitioner filed this petition with the Superior Court of the State of California, County of San Diego, (Case Number HC 15786 / SDC 117298 - 3rd Petition) for which the Honorable Judge David J. Danielsen denied said petition without the benefit of a hearing. Petitioner states that the Court of Appeals (Fourth Appellate District - Division One) also denied his petition.

Petitioner states that the California Supreme Court has (also) denied his Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus (with benefit of hearing) and failed to render any opinion as to the merits of petitioner's claims. See attached Exhibit 'A'.

Petitioner states that the reasoning provided for denying the petition is without serious merit and review by the Supreme Court is obvious to correct the ruling of the lower court.

First and probably foremost, petitioner presents but two questions:

(1) If the Determinant Sentencing Law (DSL) is without flaw (and otherwise legally valid in 1996 when the petitioner was sentenced) or survives (intact) a review under the Sixth Amendment, why is the California Legislature, at the request of California State Attorney General's Office and following the Court's ruling in Cunningham, currently reviewing the DSL as it has been operational since 1977? and

(2) If the DSL does not survive review under the Sixth Amendment, is the petitioner (then) allowed to ask that an impartial panel of judges to determine the lawfulness as review his sentence presented herein?

Petitioner contends that regardless to the statements of the Honorable Judge Daniels, and Justice McConnell, with regards to applicability of "retroactive" law, issues regarding a sentence can be addressed at any time; although a petition should be filed as soon as possible after discovery of the error, habeas corpus relief for an illegal sentence may be granted many years after the imposition of the original sentence. In re Ward (1966) 64 Cal.2d 672, 675.

Further petitioner contends that if a sentence is illegal, such as when the term exceeds that authorized by law or is based on a miscalculation of credits or misinterpretation of a statute, the trial court has imposed an illegal sentence and the sentence may be corrected at any time. People v. Jack (1989) 213 Cal.App.3d 913. In re Massengale (1970) 10 Cal.App.3d 689, 693.

Petitioner states that there appears to be the possibility that courts may have to review criminal cases dating as far back as 1977 (in inception of DSL) due to Cunningham. That's not to conclude that the U.S. Supreme Court changed the law. Cunningham enforced the previous decisions of various lower courts and reviews of the U.S. Supreme Court.

The State of California, it would appear, has consistently fallen short in terms of compliance with those rulings and as a result has suffered (directly) the ruling in Cunningham.

The U.S. Supreme Court has repeatedly held that, under the Sixth Amendment,

"any fact that exposes a defendant to a greater potential sentence must be found by a jury, not a judge, and established beyond a reasonable doubt, not merely a preponderance of the evidence." "While this rule is rooted in longstanding common-law practice, its explicit statement in our decision is recent." Cunningham v. California, 2007 WL 135687 (U.S. Cal) at page 8. In Jones v. United States (1999) 526 U.S. 227, "We examined the Sixth Amendment's historical and doctrinal foundations, and recognized that judicial fact-finding operating to increase a defendant's otherwise maximum punishment posed a grave constitutional question. Id., at 239-252. "While the court construed the statute at issue to avoid the question, the Jones opinion presaged our decision, some 15 months later, in Apprendi v. New Jersey (2000) 530 U.S. 466. And in Apprendi we held "any fact that increases the penalty for a crime beyond the prescribed statutory maximum must be submitted to a jury and proved beyond a reasonable doubt."

Petitioner contends that that does not dismiss "enhancements tied to specific counts" or more commonly referred to as enhancements pursuant to CPC 12022, et seq, or the California Three Strikes Law. In Cunningham (Id., at page 8) the court noted,

"It is surprising, then, that State's counsel, at oral argument, acknowledged that he knew of no case in which a California trial judge had gone beyond the middle term based not on any fact the judge found, solely on the bases of a policy or subjective belief." See TR. Of Oral Arg. 49-50.

The U.S. Supreme Court (in Cunningham) stated that California's DSL does not resemble the advisory system that Booker court had in view. Under California's system, judges are not free to exercise their discretion to select a specific sentence within a defined range. Booker, 543 U.S., at 233.

California's Legislature has adopted sentencing triads, three fixed sentences with no range between them. Cunningham's sentencing judge had no discretion to select a sentence within a range of 6 to 16 years. His instruction was to select 12 years, nothing less, and nothing more.

Petitioner states that unlike aggravating circumstances, statutory enhancements must be charged in the indictment, and the underlying facts must be proved to the jury beyond a reasonable doubt. CPC §1170.1(e); Black, 35 Cal.4th, at 1257.

A fact underlying an enhancement cannot do double duty; it cannot be used to impose an upper term sentence, and on top of that, an enhanced term. CPC §1170(b).

Petitioner states that, "If the Guidelines as currently written could be read as merely advisory provisions that recommended, rather than required, the selection of particular sentences in response to differing sets of facts, their use would not implicate the Sixth Amendment. We have never doubted the authority of a judge to exercise broad discretion in imposing a sentence within a statutory range." Cunningham, Id., at page 11. Petitioner states that the "Guidelines" expressed herein are that of the Federal system.

Petitioner states that his petition does not question the authority of the judge, under existing law, to impose an enhancement for his prior prison terms (only).

What is certainly being questioned is the authority of the judge to double the imposed term based on a prior strike conviction (exposing the petitioner to an elevated term) solely and absent the finding by a jury under CPC §1170.1(e) and/or §1170(b); A fact underlying an enhancement cannot do double duty.

As previously stated, the U.S. Supreme Court has held that such is not lawful. California law (CPC §1170(b) and §1170.1(e)) only supports that conclusion.

With regards to the Honorable Danielsens's claim that this is post-Cunningham or Apprendi and therefore not applicable in the instant matter, the petitioner respectfully disagrees. It would appear obvious, based on the several cases cited herein that even 20 years later (the point of discovery of an illegal sentence) habeas corpus relief can still be granted if the sentence is deemed illegal.

-VI-

Petitioner states that he has previously addressed the issue of his sentence on indirect appeal and through the Habeas Corpus process. Refer to In Re EDWARD REYNIR SULLIVAN on Habeas Corpus (Case No. HC 15786).

Petitioner state that said petition was DENIED by San Diego County Superior Court (Judge Timothy R. Walsh) . Petitioner further states that said the California Court of Appeals/4th Appellate District on or about July 31, 1997 DENIED previous petition. Petitioner states he did not seek a review by the California Supreme Court on his petition.

Petitioner contends that the "reason" for denial is not relevant as the court's position obviously differs from that of current U.S. Supreme court rulings on law.

Nonetheless, it was the petitioner's position then, as is now, that the sentence imposed (regardless to it being a judge trial) is both illegal and unlawful under the DSL scheme and addressed by the U.S. Supreme Court in CUNNINGHAM, supra., and must be corrected to conform to the both State and Federal laws.

Petitioner contends that based on the Court's findings in CUNNINGHAM, supra, the sentencing court imposed an illegal sentence under CPC §§ 667.5(b) and 1170.12 (a) through (d); and petitioner states that giving him the upper base term (itself) is in direct violation of the Sixth Amendment; as no jury determined circumstances of aggravation and petitioner denies having admitted them.

-JURISDICTION-

-Administrative Remedies-

-VII-

Petitioner states that the Respondents (and each of them) have an Administrative Appeal process; however Petitioner DENIES that said process is the proper venue to address the matter being presented before this Honorable Court and contained within this Habeas Corpus.

Petitioner states that his petition does not contain any issues, which address (1) conditions of confinement or (2) other claims for which there are "administrative remedies". In Re MUSZALSKI (1975) 52 Cal.App.3d 500, 125 Cal.Rptr. 286. Petitioner states that only a court of the land can correct errors in sentencing.

-Indirect Appeals-

-VIII-

Petitioner states that he has previously addressed the issue of his sentence on indirect appeal and through the Habeas Corpus process. Refer to In Re EDWARD REYNIR SULLIVAN on Habeas Corpus.

Petitioner state that said petition was DENIED by San Diego County Superior Court and Court of Appeals. Petitioner states that he did not seek review by the California State Supreme Court on his petition.

Petitioner states that only with the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling in CUNNINGHAM is this Petition valid and within the reasonable discovery of claimed grounds; as the Superior Court of San Diego County and the California Court of Appeals (both) DENIED the previous petition's without serious review and consideration. In Re SWAIN (1949) 34 Cal.2d 300, 304.

Petitioner DENIES having any other petitions, appeals, or other matter pending before any court and states that this IS the COURT OF NEXT IMPRESSION.

-CONTENTIONS-

-IX-

California's Determinate Sentencing Law (DSL), which authorizes the judge, not the jury, to find facts by a preponderance of the evidence exposing a defendant to an elevated upper term sentence violates a defendants right to trial by jury. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 6, 14

Petitioner states that "except for a prior conviction, any fact that increases the penalty for a crime beyond the prescribed statutory maximum must be submitted to a jury and proved beyond a reasonable doubt" in order to satisfy the petitioner's constitutional rights under the Sixth and Fourteenth Amendment of (both State and) Federal Constitution(s). CUNNINGHAM v. CALIFORNIA, 2007 WL 135687 (U.S.Cal.).

Petitioner contends under existing law, the DSL obliged the trial judge to sentence him to the 4-year middle term unless the judge found one or more additional "circumstances in aggravation". Petitioner states that Court Rules adopted to implement DSL define "circumstances in aggravation" as facts that justify the upper term. Those facts, the Rules provide must be established by a preponderance of the evidence.

Petitioner states that the judge failed to firmly establish that fact; nor was those facts found by a jury trial as required by law.

Petitioner states that "based on a post-trial sentencing hearing, the judge found by a preponderance of the evidence six aggravating facts, including the particular vulnerability of the victim, and one mitigating fact that CUNNINGHAM had no record of prior criminal conduct. Concluding that the aggravators outweighed the sole mitigator, the judge sentenced CUNNINGHAM to the upper term of 16 years." CUNNINGHAM, Id. at Page 2. Emphasis added.

Petitioner states that the California Court of Appeal affirmed and the State Supreme Court DENIED review, but in a decision published nine days earlier, PEOPLE v. BLACK, 35 Cal.4th 1230, 1113 P.3d 534, that court HELD that the DSL survived Sixth Amendment inspection.

Specifically, Petitioner contends that that Court held: "The DSL, by placing sentence-elevating factfinding within the judge's province, violations a defendant's right to trial by jury safeguarded by the Sixth and Fourteenth Amendments". People v. Black, Id. @ Pp.....8-22. Petitioner contends that the doubling of the middle term (from 4 to 8 years) fall within the review of the court as it (also) elevates the lawful term that the sentencing court could impose.

Petitioner states that the U.S. Supreme Court in Apprendi held that "under the Sixth Amendment, any fact (other than a prior conviction) that exposes a defendant to a sentence in excess of the relevant statutory maximum must be found by a jury, not a judge, and established beyond a reasonable doubt, not merely by a preponderance of evidence. See 530 U.S. 466, 490; 120 S.Ct. 2348, 147 L.Ed.2d 435. (Emphasis and underscoring added).

Petitioner states that in two (2) other relevant cases, BLAKELY v. WASHINGTON, 542 U.S. 296; 124 S.Ct. 2531; 159 L.Ed.2d 403 and UNITED STATES v. BOOKER, 543 U.S. 220,125 S.Ct. 738; 160 L.Ed.2d 621, are central to this petition and the U.S. Supreme Court's current position as outlined herein. Petitioner states that in all material respects, California's DSL resembles the sentencing systems invalidated in both BLAKELY and BOOKER.

Petitioner states that following the reasoning in those cases, "the middle term prescribed under California law, not the upper term, is the relevant statutory maximum. Because aggravating facts that authorize the upper term are found by the judge, and need only be established by a preponderance of the evidence, the DSL violates the rule of Apprendi". CUNNINGHAM, Id. at Page 3.

Petitioner states that "While 'that should be the end of the matter', BLAKELY, Id. at Page 313, in PEOPLE v. BLACK, the California Supreme Court insisted that the DSL survives the inspection under our precedents.

The Black court reasoned that, given the ample discretion afforded trial judges to identify aggravating facts warranting an upper term sentence, the DSL did "not represent a legislative effort to shift the proof of particular facts from elements of a crime (to be proved by a jury) to sentencing factors (to be decided by a judge)." 35 Cal.4th, at 1255-1256; 29 Cal.Rptr.3d 740; 113 P3d, at 543-544. "This Court cautioned in BLAKELY, however, that broad discretion to decide what fact may support an enhanced sentence, or to determine whether an enhanced sentence is warranted in a particular case, does not shield a sentencing system from the force of this Court's decision." Citing CUNNINGHAM v CALIFORNIA (Id.) at Page 4. Emphasis and underscoring added.

Petitioner NOTES that the BLACK court also urged that the DSL is not cause for concern because it reduced the penalties for most crimes over the prior indeterminate sentencing scheme; because the system is fair to defendant; and because the DSL requires statutory sentence enhancements (as distinguished from aggravators) to be charged in the indictment and proved to a jury beyond a reasonable doubt.

Petitioner contends that ultimately, the BLACK court relied on an equation of California's DSL to the post-BOOKER federal system. That attempted comparison is unavailing. The BOOKER court held that the Federal Guidelines incompatible with the Sixth Amendment because there were "mandatory and impose[d] binding requirements on all sentencing judges", 543 U.S. at 233. To remedy the constitutional infirmity, the Court exercised provisions that rendered the system mandatory, leaving the Guidelines in place "as advisory only".

Petitioner contends (however) that the California DSL does not resemble the "advisory system" the Court in BOOKER had in view. Under California's system, the petitioner contends that "judges are not free to exercise their discretion to select a specific sentence within a defined range" Id. Petitioner states that the California Legislature has adopted sentencing triads, three fixed sentences with no ranges between them.

CUNNINGHAM'S sentencing judge had no discretion to select a sentence range of 6 to 16 years, but had to impose 12 years, nothing less and nothing more, unless the judge found facts allowing a sentence of 6 or 16 years. Factfinding to elevate the sentence from 12 to 16 years, this Court's decision make plain, falls within the province of the jury employing a "beyond a reasonable doubt" standard, not the bailiwick of a judge determining where the preponderance of the evidence lies." CUNNINGHAM (Id.) at Page 4. Emphasis and underscoring added.

Petitioner states that the Court position (based on the facts) in Cunningham is as follows:

"Because the DSL allocates to judges sole authority to find facts permitting the imposition of an upper term sentence, the system violates the Sixth Amendment". Cunningham (Id.) at Page 4. Underscoring and emphasis added.

(c) As to the adjustment of California sentencing system in light of the Court's ruling, "[t]he ball...lies in [California's] court." BOOKER, 543 U.S. at 265. Several States have modified their systems in the wake of Apprendi and Blakely to retain determinate sentencing, by calling upon the jury to find any fact necessary to the imposition of an elevated sentence. Other States have chosen to permit judges genuinely "to exercise broad discretion ... within a statutory range," which, "everyone agrees, " encounters no Sixth Amendments shoal. Id., at 233. California may follow the paths taken by its sister States or otherwise alter its system, so long as it observes Sixth Amendment limitations declared in this Court's decision. Pp --- - --- 21-22." Citing Cunningham (Id. at Page 4).

Petitioner states that the Court's findings in CUNNINGHAM included "[T]he relevant 'statutory maximum', " this Court has clarified, "is not the maximum sentence a judge may impose after finding additional facts, but the maximum he may impose without any additional findings." BLAKELY, 542 U.S. at 303-304 (emphasis in original).

Petitioner states that the Court's findings in CUNNINGHAM concluded, "We reverse that disposition because the four-year elevation based on judicial factfinding denied petitioner his right to a jury trial..." Id., @ Page 5.

Petitioner contends that based on his lack of a JURY trial "the middle term shall be selected" as "circumstances in aggravation, as crisply defined by the Judicial Council means facts which justify the imposition of the upper prison term." Rule 4.405(a) and (b).

Petitioner DENIES that it was ever established by a preponderance of the evidence of that it was stated orally on the record. Rule 4.420(e). Petitioner further states, "A fact that is an element of the crime shall not be used to impose an upper term." Rule 4.420(d).

Petitioner states that in sum, California's DSL, and the rules governing its application, direct the sentencing court to start with the middle term and to move from that term only when the court itself finds and places on the record facts - whether related to the offense or the offender - beyond the elements of the charged offense. CUNNINGHAM, Id., at Page 7. And See PEOPLE v. HALL (1994) 8 Cal.4th 950, 957; 35 Cal.Rptr.2d 432; 883 P.2d 978, "Selection of the upper term is justified only if circumstances in aggravation are established by a preponderance of evidence..." (Emphasis added). See also, e.g., Rule 4.420(b) "Selection of the upper term is justified only if, after a consideration of all relevant facts, the circumstances in aggravation outweigh the circumstances of mitigation." (Emphasis added). Rule 4.420(e).

Court must provide "a concise statement of the ultimate facts that the court deemed to constitute circumstances in aggravation or mitigation." (Emphasis added).

In CUNNINGHAM, Petitioner contends, "this Court has repeatedly held that, under the Sixth Amendment, any fact that exposes a defendant to a greater potential sentence must be found by a jury, not a judge, and established beyond a reasonable doubt, not merely by a preponderance of the evidence. Petitioner further contends, "While this rule is rooted in longstanding common-law practice, its explicit statement in our decisions is recent."

In JONES v. UNITED STATES (1999) 526 U.S. 227; 119 S.Ct. 1215, the Court examined the Sixth Amendment's historical and doctrinal foundations and recognized the judicial factfinding operating to increase a defendant's otherwise maximum punishment posed a grave constitutional question. Id., at Page 239-252.

Petitioner states that in APPRENDI, Charles Apprendi was convicted of possession of a firearm for any unlawful purpose, a second-degree offense under New Jersey law punishable by five to ten years' imprisonment. Id., at Page 468.

A separate "hate crime" statute authorized an "extended term" of imprisonment: Ten to Twenty years could be imposed if the trial judge found, by a preponderance of the evidence that "[t] he defendant in committing the crime acted with a purpose to intimidate an individual or group of individuals because of race, color, gender, handicap, religion, sexual orientation or ethnicity.'" Id., at 468-469. The judge in APPRENDI's case so found, and therefore sentenced the defendant to 12 years imprisonment. This Court held that the Sixth Amendment proscribed the enhanced sentence. 530 U.S. at 471. Other than a prior conviction, see ALMENDAREZ-TORRES v. UNITED STATES (1998) 523 U.S. 224, 239-247; 118 S.Ct. 1219; 140 L.Ed.2d 350, we held in Apprendi:

"Any fact that increases the penalty for a crime beyond the prescribed statutory maximum must be submitted to a jury, and proved beyond a reasonable doubt."

530 U.S. at 490. See also HARRIS v. UNITED STATES (2002) 536 U.S. 545, 557-566; 122 S.Ct. 2406; 153 L.Ed.2d 524 (plurality opinion) ("APPRENDI said that any fact extending the defendant's sentence beyond the maximum authorized by the jury's verdict would have been considered an element of an aggravated crime - and thus the domain of the jury - by those who framed the Bill of Rights.").

Petitioner states that applying the rule of APPRENDI, the Court held BLAKELY's sentence "unconstitutional". The State in BLAKELY had endeavored to distinguish APPRENDI on the ground that "[u]nder the Washington guidelines, an exceptional sentence is within the court's discretion as a result of a guilty verdict."

The court rejected the argument indicating that the judge could not have sentenced BLAKELY above the range without finding the additional fact of deliberate cruelty. Consequently, that fact was subject to the Sixth Amendment's jury-trial guarantee. 542 U.S. at 304-314. It did not matter, the court explained, that BLAKELY's sentence, though outside the standard range, was within the 10-year maximum for class B felonies:

"Our precedents make clear ... that the 'statutory maximum' for Apprendi purposes is the maximum sentence a judge may impose solely on the basis of the facts reflected in the jury verdict or admitted by the defendant ... In other words, the relevant 'statutory maximum' is not the maximum sentence a judge may impose after finding additional facts, but the maximum he may impose without any additional findings. When a judge inflicts punishment that the jury's verdict alone does not allow, the jury has not found all the facts 'which the law makes essential to the punishment' ... and the judge exceeds his proper authority." Id., at Page 303. (Emphasis in original) (Quoting J. Bishop, Criminal Procedure § 87, p.55 (2d ed. 1872)). CUNNINGHAM, supra at Page 10.

Petitioner Contends that the Sentencing Court Judge Exceeded His Authority in Imposing
"Enhancements" against Him

Petitioner contends that the sentencing court/judge had no lawful jurisdiction (alone or even considering his plea bargain) to impose additional time based on any enhancements.

Petitioner indicates that the State had additionally argued in BLAKELY that APPRENDI's rule was satisfied because Washington's Reform Act did not specify an exclusive catalog of potential facts on which a judge might base a departure from the standard range.

The Court rejected that argument as well:

"Whether the judge's authority to impose an enhanced sentence depends on finding a specified fact ... one of several specified facts ... or any aggravating fact (as here)," we observed, "it remains the case that the jury's verdict alone does not authorize the sentence." 542 U.S. at 305 (emphasis in original). Further, they held it irrelevant that the Reform Act ultimately left the decision whether or not to depart to the judge's discretion: "Whether the judicially determined facts require a sentence enhancement or merely allow it," they noted "the verdict alone does not authorize the sentence." Ibid. n.8 (emphasis in original).

Petitioner contends that if the guidelines (as currently written) could be read as merely "advisory" provisions that recommended rather than required, the selection of particular sentences in response to differing sets of facts, their use would not implicate the Sixth Amendment.

Petitioner states that the constitutional issues presented by the CUNNINGHAM case would have been avoided entirely if Congress had omitted from the (Federal Sentencing Reform Act) provisions that make the Guidelines binding on district judges... For when a trial judge exercises his discretion to select a specific sentence within a defined range, the defendant has no right to jury determination of the fact that the judge deems relevant. "The Guidelines as written, however, are not advisory; they are mandatory and binding on all judges." Ibid. (Citations omitted).

Petitioner states that pursuant to CUNNINGHAM under California's DSL, an upper term may be imposed only when the trial judge finds an aggravating circumstance. See supra at 4-5. An element of the charged offense, essential to the jury's determination of guilt, or admitted in a defendant's guilty plea, does not qualify as such a circumstance. See supra, at 5-6.

Instead, aggravating circumstances depend on facts found discretely and solely by the judge. In accord with BLAKELY, therefore, the middle term prescribed in California's statutes, not the upper term is the relevant statutory maximum. 542 U.S. at 303.

"[T] he 'statutory maximum' for Apprendi purposes is the maximum sentence a judge may impose solely on the basis of the facts reflected in the jury verdict or admitted by the defendant." (Emphasis in original). Because of the circumstance in aggravation are found by the judge, not the jury, and need only be established by a preponderance of the evidence, not beyond a reasonable doubt, see supra, at 5, the DSL violates Apprendi's bright-line rule: Except for a prior conviction, "any fact that increases the penalty for a crime beyond the prescribed statutory maximum must be submitted to a jury, and proved beyond a reasonable doubt." 530 U.S. at 490.

The United States Supreme Court cautioned in BLAKELY, however, that broad discretion to decide what facts may support an enhanced sentence, or to determine whether an enhanced sentence is warranted in any particular case, does not shield a sentencing system from the source of their decisions.

If the jury's verdict alone does not authorize the sentence, if, instead, the judge must find an additional fact to impose the longer term, Sixth Amendment requirement is not satisfied. (Emphasis added). BLAKELY, 542 U.S. at 305, and n.8.

"The BLACK court additionally noted that the DSL requires statutory enhancements (as distinguished from aggravators) - e.g., the use of firearm or other dangerous weapon, infliction of great bodily injury, Penal Code §§ 12022, 12022.7-8 (West 2000 and Supp.2006) - to be charged in the indictment and proved to a jury beyond a reasonable doubt." 35 Cal.4th at 1257. The Court in Cunningham concluded, "Our decisions, however, leave no room for such examinations.

The Court found that California's DSL does not resemble the advisory system the BOOKER Court had in view. Under California's system, judges are not free to exercise their discretion to select a specific sentence within a defined range. Booker, 543 U.S. at 233. California Legislature has adopted sentencing triads, three fixed sentences with no ranges between them.

CUNNINGHAM's sentencing judge had no discretion to select a sentence within a range of 6 to 16 years. His instruction was to select 12 years, nothing less and nothing more, unless he found facts allowing the imposition of a sentence of 6 or 16 years, our decisions make plain, falls within the province of the jury employing a beyond-a-reasonable-doubt standard, not the bailiwick of a judge determining where the preponderance of the evidence lies. Cunningham, supra, at Page 14.

Petitioner contends that the doubling of the middle term (from 4 to 8 years) fall within the review of the court as it (also) elevates the lawful term that the sentencing court could impose.

Lastly, petitioner states: "reasonableness, however, is not, as the BLACK court would have it, the touchstone of the Sixth Amendment analysis. The reasonableness requirement BOOKER anticipated for the federal system operates within the Sixth Amendment constraints delineated in our precedent, not as a substitute for those constraints. Because DSL allocates to judges sole authority to find facts permitting the imposition of an upper term sentence, the system violates the Sixth Amendment.

It is comforting, but beside the point, that California's system requires judge-determined DSL sentences to be reasonable. BOOKER's remedy for the Federal Guidelines, in short, is not a recipe for rendering our Sixth Amendment case law toothless." Cunningham, supra at Page 14.

Petitioner states that contrary to the BLACK court's holding, the Court decisions from Apprendi to Booker point to the middle term specified in California statutes, not the upper term, as the relevant statutory maximum. "Because DSL authorizes the judges, not the jury, to find facts permitting an upper term sentence, the system cannot withstand measurement against our Sixth Amendment precedent." Cunningham, supra at Page 15.

The Court (in Cunningham) concludes by stating:

"As to the adjustment of California's sentencing system in light of our decision, '[T]he ball ... lies in [California's] court.' BOOKER, 543 U.S. at 265; cf. supra at Page 15. "We note that several States have modified their systems in the wake of Apprendi and Blakely to retain determinate sentencing.

They have done so by calling upon the jury - either at trial or in separate sentencing proceeding - to find any fact necessary to the imposition of an elevated sentence. As earlier noted, California already employs juries in this manner to determine statutory sentencing enhancements. See supra, at Page 7, 18.

Other States have chosen to permit judges genuinely 'to exercise broad discretion ... within a statutory range,' which 'everyone agrees,' encounters no Sixth Amendment shoal. BOOKER, 543 U.S. at 233. "California may follow the paths taken by its sister States or otherwise alter its system, so long as the State observes Sixth Amendment limitations declared in this Court's decision. Supra, at Page 15.

-XI-

-CONCLUSION-

"That should be the end of the matter." BLAKELY, 542 U.S. at 313. Petitioner states that the position of the United States Supreme Court should be clear on this matter. CUNNINGHAM, APPRENDI, BOOKER, and BLAKELY should be sufficient case law for everyone to agree.

Petitioner states that based on the holdings of the various courts (as outlined herein), it seems all too apparent that he has (in fact) suffered Constitutional violations with regards to both the Sixth and Fourteenth Amendments; as due process and equal rights mandates simply cannot be ignored or merely overlooked.

Petitioner states that (now) only a court of the land can correct the situation and he seeks to accomplish that.

Petitioner contends that the doubling of the middle term (from 4 to 8 years) fall within the review of the court as it (also) elevates the lawful term that the sentencing court could impose.

Petitioner contends that based on the Court's findings in CUNNINGHAM, supra, the sentencing court imposed an illegal sentence under CPC §§ 667.5(b) and 1170.12 (a) through (d); and petitioner states that giving him the upper base term (itself) is in direct violation of the Sixth Amendment; as no jury determined circumstances of aggravation and petitioner denies having admitted them.

Petitioner will not conclude that the acts committed herein to be intentional; but concedes that it is at least (now) obvious that the imposition of his sentence is unlawful as described herein. For the above stated reasons, the relief sought in the petition should be granted.

Again, petitioner presents but two questions: (1) If the Determinant Sentencing Law (DSL) is without flaw (and otherwise legally valid in 1996 when the petitioner was sentenced) or survives (intact) a review under the Sixth Amendment, why is the California Legislature, at the request of California State Attorney General's Office and following the Court's ruling in Cunningham, currently reviewing the DSL as it has been operational since 1977? (2) If the DSL does not survive review under the Sixth Amendment, is the petitioner (then) allowed to ask that an impartial panel of judges to determine the lawfulness as review his sentence presented herein?

Petitioner contends that regardless to the statements of the Honorable Judge Daniels, with regards to applicability of "retroactive" law, issues regarding a sentence can be addressed at any time; although a petition should be filed as soon as possible after discovery of the error, habeas corpus relief for an illegal sentence may be granted many years after the imposition of the original sentence. In re Ward (1966) 64 Cal.2d 672, 675.

Further petitioner contends that if a sentence is illegal, such as when the term exceeds that authorized by law or is based on a miscalculation of credits or misinterpretation of a statute, the trial court has imposed an illegal sentence and the sentence may be corrected at any time. People v. Jack (1989) 213 Cal.App.3d 913. In re Massengale (1970) 10 Cal.App.3d 689, 693.

Petitioner states that there appears to be the possibility that courts may have to review criminal cases dating as far back as 1977 (in inception of DSL) due to Cunningham. That's not to conclude that the U.S. Supreme Court changed the law. Cunningham enforced the previous decisions of various lower courts and reviews of the U.S. Supreme Court. The State of California, it would appear, has consistently fallen short in terms of compliance with those rulings and as a result has suffered (directly) the ruling in Cunningham.

The U.S. Supreme Court has repeatedly held that, under the Sixth Amendment, "any fact that exposes a defendant to a greater potential sentence must be found by a jury, not a judge, and established beyond a reasonable doubt, not merely a preponderance of the evidence."

"While this rule is rooted in longstanding common-law practice, its explicit statement in our decision is recent." Cunningham v. California, 2007 WL 135687 (U.S.Cal) at page 8.

In Jones v. United States (1999) 526 U.S. 227, "We examined the Sixth Amendment's historical and doctrinal foundations, and recognized that judicial fact-finding operating to increase a defendant's otherwise maximum punishment posed a grave constitutional question. Id., at 239-252.

"While the court construed the statute at issue to avoid the question, the Jones opinion presaged our decision, some 15 months later, in Apprendi v. New Jersey (2000) 530 U.S. 466. And in Apprendi we held "any fact that increases the penalty for a crime beyond the prescribed statutory maximum must be submitted to a jury and proved beyond a reasonable doubt."

Petitioner contends that that does not dismiss "enhancements tied to specific counts" or more commonly referred to as enhancements pursuant to CPC 12022, et seq, or the California Three Strikes Law.

In Cunningham (Id., at page 8) the court noted, "It is surprising, then, that State's counsel, at oral argument, acknowledged that he knew of no case in which a California trial judge had gone beyond the middle term based not on any fact the judge found, solely on the bases of a policy or subjective belief." See TR. Of Oral Arg. 49-50.

The U.S. Supreme Court (in Cunningham) stated that California's DSL does not resemble the advisory system that Booker court had in view. Under California's system, judges are not free to exercise their discretion to select a specific sentence within a defined range. Booker, 543 U.S., at 233.

California's Legislature has adopted sentencing triads, three fixed sentences with no range between them. Cunningham's sentencing judge had no discretion to select a sentence within a range of 6 to 16 years. His instruction was to select 12 years, nothing less, and nothing more.

Petitioner states that unlike aggravating circumstances, statutory enhancements must be charged in the indictment, and the underlying facts must be proved to the jury beyond a reasonable doubt. CPC §1170.1(e); Black, 35 Cal.4th, at 1257.

A fact underlying an enhancement cannot do double duty; it cannot be used to impose an upper term sentence, and on top of that, an enhanced term. CPC §1170(b).

Petitioner states that, "If the Guidelines as currently written could be read as merely advisory provisions that recommended, rather than required, the selection of particular sentences in response to differing sets of facts, their use would not implicate the Sixth Amendment. We have never doubted the authority of a judge to exercise broad discretion in imposing a sentence within a statutory range." Cunningham, Id., at page 11. Petitioner states that the "Guidelines" expressed herein are that of the Federal system.

Petitioner states that his petition does not question the authority of the judge, under existing law, to impose an enhancement for his prior prison terms (only).

What is certainly being questioned is the authority of the judge to double the imposed term based on a prior strike conviction (exposing the petitioner to an elevated term) solely and absent the finding by a jury under CPC §1170.1(e) and/or §1170(b); A fact underlying an enhancement cannot do double duty. As previously stated, the U.S. Supreme Court has held that such is not lawful. California law (CPC §1170(b) and §1170.1(e)) only supports that conclusion.

With regards to the Honorable Danielsens's claim that this is post-Cunningham or Apprendi (and noting the comment of P.J. McCONNELL, with regards to Blakely) and therefore not applicable in the instant matter, the petitioner respectfully disagrees.

It would appear obvious, based on the several cases cited herein that even 20 years later (the point of discovery of an illegal sentence) habeas corpus relief can still be granted if the sentence is deemed illegal.

Petitioner states that if the court had sentenced him correctly, he would have already been released from custody. Petitioner states that he has contended (all along) that the sentence (itself) violated applicable laws in full force and effect at the time of his original sentence. Cunningham only enforces what he has said all along.

Based on this simple fact, petitioner would ask that this court take judicial note of that fact; and consider granting him release (on appeal bond) pending review by this honorable court. Petitioner contends that his release date should have been in 2000. More than seven (7) years later, petitioner remains in custody.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS

SUPPORT OF MOTION TO TRANSFER

21 Petitioner Sullivan filed his habeas petition requesting relief under 28 U.S.C.
22 § 2254, in this Court on January 14, 2008. According to Sullivan's Petition, he is 23 currently incarcerated due to his conviction in San Diego County Superior Court, case
24 number SDC117298. (Pet. at 2 of 10, ¶2(c).) He challenges a conviction for which 25 he is serving a fifteen-year sentence for burglary and receiving stolen property, which 26 were committed while he was on bail for another offense, and which includes prior 27 conviction allegations. (Pet. at 2 of 10, ¶¶2(b), 2(e).)

28 ///

DISCUSSION

Venue for a habeas corpus action is proper either in the district of confinement or the district of conviction. 28 U.S.C. § 2241(d). By Local Rule, however, this Court has adopted a policy of transferring habeas matters to the district in which the petitioner was convicted, rather than in which the petitioner is presently confined. C.D. Cal R. 83-17.5.

Although Sullivan alleges that he is currently confined in the California Rehabilitation Center, Norco (Pet. at 1 of 10), he admits he was convicted in San Diego County, which is within the Southern District of California.

Accordingly, and although this Court has jurisdiction, it should transfer this matter to the Southern District of California. Otherwise, if Sullivan's place of confinement were to change to a prison located outside of the Central District, this Court would lose jurisdiction.

I declare:

I am employed in the Office of the Attorney General, which is the office of a member of the California State Bar, at which member's direction this service is made. I am 18 years of age or older and not a party to this matter. I am familiar with the business practice at the Office of the Attorney General for collection and processing of correspondence for mailing with the United States Postal Service. In accordance with that practice, correspondence placed in the internal mail collection system at the Office of the Attorney General is deposited with the United States Postal Service that same day in the ordinary course of business.

On February 8, 2008, I served the attached NOTICE OF APPEARANCE by placing a true copy thereof enclosed in a sealed envelope with postage thereon fully prepaid, in the internal mail collection system at the Office of the Attorney General at 110 West A Street, Suite 1100, P.O. Box 85266, San Diego, CA 92186-5266, addressed as follows:

EDWARD REYNIR SULLIVAN,

Petitioner,

v.

MATTHEW MARTELL, Warden,

Respondent.

Case No: CV 08-210-JFW (E)

NOTICE OF OBJECTION TO REQUEST
FOR TRANSFER BY RESPONDENT

Respondent, Matthew Martell, via assigned counsel from the Office of the Attorney General, State of California, and specifically, Matthew Mulford, has filed a request with this honorable court requesting that this matter be transferred to the Southern District Court of California. The authority cited by the Respondent simply that this Court has "adopted a policy" of transferring habeas matters to the district in which the petitioner was convicted, rather than in which the petitioner is presently confined.

It appears obvious by 28 U.S.C. §2241(d) that proper venue for habeas corpus action is either in the district of confinement or the district of conviction. It also appears obvious that this court has elected to hear this matter based on previously submitted orders. The Respondent does not cite any specific reason(s) for transfer that this court should give this matter serious consideration.

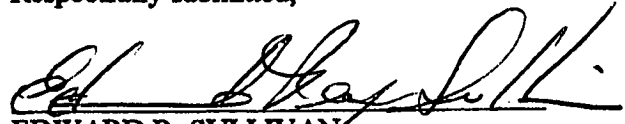

Petitioner objects to the transfer of this matter. There is no logical reason(s) presented by the Respondent for any such transfer and the Office of the Attorney General is well situated to handle this matter regardless to which court it may be filed in. Additionally, petitioner states that counsel has been assigned by the Senior Assistant Attorney General and any change of venue at this time could result in a change in assigned Deputy Attorney General's; thereby presenting an opportunity for any newly assigned counsel to seek additional time to file a response.

Petitioner states that considering all factors, this Honorable Court is the correct and proper venue to address this matter and as such, should not arbitrarily transfer it to the Southern District without more specific cause being presented and the petitioner is seeking this court to retain its current jurisdiction over this matter.

Accordingly, petitioner respectfully request that this court DENY the Respondent's request for transfer venue to the United States District Court for the Southern District of California, and that said jurisdiction be retained based on the county of confinement. Petitioner would also ask that this Honorable Court hold the Respondent to the previously due date to the Order to Show Cause thus denying any request for continuance.

Dated: February 16, 2008

Respectfully submitted,

EDWARD R. SULLIVAN
